

Navigating Stanford Libraries' Databases

Regina Roberts and Claudia Engel

The Stanford University Libraries subscribe to over 1,800 databases. Where do you begin your research? How can you find what you need? What databases are available and relevant for you? In this workshop, we will walk you through using some of the important databases you should know about, including xSearch, the Social Science Citation Index, Annual Reviews, Simplymap, DataPlanet, Sage research methods, and more. Come to this session to find out about what's new and some possible research leads for your work.

Regina Roberts is a librarian at Stanford University Libraries. She is the Bibliographer for Anthropology, Communication & Journalism, Feminist Studies, Lusophone Africa Collections, and Sociology. Claudia Engel is Academic Technology Specialist at the Department of Anthropology and member of the Center for Interdisciplinary Digital Research (CIDR) at the Stanford University Libraries.

Monday
October 3, 2016
12:30 - 1:20pm
Building 50, 51A

Department of Anthropology
BROWN BAG FORUM